

the stipe) it was very cobwebby and thin.

After some digging around in MushroomExpert.com and some well-referenced Wikipedia articles, I came to the conclusion of Leprotia aspera.

• After drying, the cap curled inwards considerably and changed from a mostly white color to a mostly brown color.

